Newsy Notes From Our Northern Neighbor

Happenings Of The Week As Chronicled By Our Hustling Reporter

(Special to The Dispatch.)

WILLITS, July 9th.

Willits is a busy town, and every one who works is employed at some occupation that brings in money. The drones are conspicuous by their absence, or pass unobserved amid the bustling throng.

The stages coming and going are crowded with passengers and loaded with baggage.

New buildings spring up like mushrooms, on every side, and we are sorry to say are nearly as fragile and unsubstantial. The dust is almost unendurable, and raised by the wind and the constant passing of vehicles, fills the air, penetrates the homes and pervades everything and everybody. There is no effort made by anyone to abate this nuisance. Not a drop of water is wasted on any such foolish operation as road or street sprinkling. And why not? Because water is nearly as precious as gold or will be as the dry season advances. Three or four miles south of town, a beautiful stream of pure, sparkling, cold spring water rushes down the mountain and meanders for a long way into the valley, to be finally dissipated by evaporation and absorption into mother earth. It is pleasing to the eye and refreshing to the weary, dusty and thirsty traveller as he presses onward to Willits; and when he gets there, he looks about him on the dreary, dusty streets and buildings, and the wonder grows within him, until it finds expression in emphatic speech. He wants to know what is the matter with the people, why this abundant supply of water he has just passed is not in evidence in the town. He is met by the statement that it takes money to bring it in, and he replies, why don't you raise the money then and get the water? The rejoinder is, we are trying to get the people interested, and we have $5070 subscribed, about one half the amount needed, but we seem to have reached the limit of our resources in that direction. The proposition hangs fire. As we predicted several weeks ago, to get the first half subscribed was an easy task, but to raise the remainder would require work. And just when the working point is reached the ardor of the projectors and managers of the proposition seems to have completely cooled. No more vital question could stir the lethargic humor of the citizens of this place, than this one of an adequate supply of pure water. The arguments in favor of it are self evident and conclusive, from every point of view. Their iteration however seems to fall upon ears deaf to argument or persuasion. A stolid indifference presents a barrier to all the efforts of the loyal, energetic and progressive citizen, when he begins to talk up the water question among his neighbors. Every man of them knows the full importance of the question, yet he cannot be spurred into action.

The object lesson of the late destructive fire fails to have any quickening impulse, and it is a mooted question if an epidemic even would arouse the whole people to action. If we escape an epidemic this summer we will certainly not deserve the credit of having taken any precautions to prevent it. We will trust to luck, and hope that by the advent of another summer the infusion of new blood into the community will have so leavened this whole body, as to have saved us from a widespread and fatal sickness, through the adoption and execution of such plans as will insure the town a modern sewer system and an abundance of good water. Both systems cannot be two quickly installed, and if private subscription and enterprise and capital cannot accomplish the result, then bond the town, or at least submit the question in that form, and by the result we will know the temper of the whole people. The time is ripe also to disincorporate. The town as originally laid out spreads over two much territory. Its limits should be restricted to a mile or so in extent. A move will shortly be made in that direction, and we predict that it will be successful this time.

We would have all our readers understand that whatever strictures appear in this, or any subsequent letter, are written merely as a spur to action, a holding of the mirror up to nature, that we may see ourselves as others see us. They are written pro bono publico.

Railroad work is progressing rapidly and we may hope to see the locomotive rushing into Willits before the winter rains set in. The San Francisco Construction Co., now has a camp located west of Willits and another about three miles south of town. Another large business structure is to be erected for the Northwestern Redwood Co., near the new mill, mainly for office purposes.

The brick for the new buildings to be erected by McMurray, Thomas & Baechtel are on the ground and the masons are at work constructing the foundation walls. As it is all straight work the progress will be rapid. The mason work on the three brick structures, to be built for the above gentlemen, must be finished by August 15th prox, so we understand, which precludes any delay. They will redeem that end of town, and help to maintain the old time prestige.

Numerous structures are going up along Main street on the ground cleared by the late fire, but from the character of the buildings we surmise that they are only temporary. If permanent they would add nothing to the value of the land and would detract from the general appearance that the main business street of the town should present.

Thos. Flannagan has already up, quite a large two story wooden structure, where his old blacksmith shop stood. The first floor is fitted up for a restaurant, and has been leased for a year to Mr. Moore, at a rental of a dollar a day. The upper part will be utilized for lodgings.

The most sightly building yet projected and completed is the new saloon of O. T. Wells. It will surpass the last one occupied by him at the time of the fire, both in size and interior arrangements and fittings, and will rival any establishment of its kind this side of San Francisco.

Mr. McElroy has a neat cottage, for his own use well under way, which will be a creditable addition to the residence portion of the town, when finished.

Ed Painter, a young man well known here, died last Friday at his home on the outlet, and was buried Saturday.

George Cook has been seriously ill for a week, but is now improving rapidly.

John Harms has apparently recovered and is about once more attending to business.

Vane Rogers is convalescing after a short illness. Quite a number of people have been ailing and on the sick list for several weeks past. The cause does not seem very clear, but the over crowded condition of the town, combined with the changeable character of the weather and the not very pure condition of the water will probably account for the most of it.

We have an efficient staff of medical men resident here, who are ready at all times to render prompt assistance in case of accident or sickness.

P. L. Hall now has commodious quarters in the new post office building in which to transact his postal business, and he needs all the room he has. The business has assumed such proportions, that the major part of his time is consumed in attending to it and the increasing patronage of the telephone, which is also located in his office.

To add to the confusion incident to building operations, several structures are allowed to be maintained almost in the middle of Main street, the principal business thorofare of the town. They block the street and incommode the traveling public, and are an unsightly and unlawful use of the street. It all helps to create an unfavorable impression on the minds of visitors and prospective investors. Such careless methods of conserving the interests of the town are not calculated to inspire confidence. The streets ought to be clear of obstructions. They are made for travel and the accommodation of the public and not to subserve private interests. We want to have and behold a model town, and a little judicious criticism we deem not out of place. We hope it will bear fruit, and that the proper officials will take cognizance of public matters of this sort, and see to it that the streets are cleared and kept clear. PROGRADIMUR.

SAD DEATH OF MRS. R. T. GRAY

Last Sunday afternoon, Rev. W. F. Coffin of this city received a telephone message from Fort Bragg, stating that Mrs. Nettie Gray, wife of Rev. R. T. Gray, Pastor of the Baptist church at the latter place, was dying, and requesting his presence. Rev. Mr. Coffin started for Fort Bragg early Monday morning. We received a message from him Wednesday morning, stating that Mrs. Gray expired at 4 o'clock Wednesday morning. The news of this sad death will cause a feeling of profound grief in the hearts of the many friends in Ukiah, who knew and esteemed her. During the stricken husband's pastorate of the Baptist church in Ukiah, his wife was active in church work and also conducted a kindergarten school. After removing to Fort Bragg, she engaged in teaching in the public schools, and was so engaged up to a short time before her last illness. She was a lady of rare accomplishments and was much devoted to her husband.

Brother Gray has our sincerest sympathy in this his hour of great sorrow, as we know he has of the hosts of friends who knew him in Ukiah.

The funeral took place at 10 o'clock A. M. today, Rev. W. F. Coffin conducting the exercises and preaching the funeral sermon.

J. A. Fillmore, so long the General Manager of the Southern Pacific, has resigned his position, and it is said he is to receive a pension of $1000 a month until January, and $500 a month for the rest of his life.

J. S. Torrence, wife and two children arrived in Ukiah Thursday evening on a visit to Mrs. Torrence's sister, Mrs. J. F. Dinwiddie.

GENERAL NEWS OF THE WEEK

What Our Neighbors are Doing and Saying.

Summary of What has Just Occurred. Accidents And Incidents.

Joe Ainslie was in from York's bark camp Sunday. Joe tells an amusing story on two of his Comptche friends who came in to go to the city on Sunday. The two friends expected to take the afternoon train for S. F., but expected the train to back up to the Palace for them. Joe finally appeared and said: "Aren't you fellows going on this train?" "That's what we be" said the friends. "Well," said Joe, "get a move on or you'll miss the train; you will have to go to the depot, the train doesn't come by here." The two friends made a run for the depot and got there just as the train was leaving. They followed it at a break neck speed until the train entered the first tunnel and then returned to town. "Well," said Joe, "what's the matter, didn't you catch it?" "No," said one, "we were gaining on it and would have caught it but it ran into the ground down the way." "And if it had just missed that hole," said the other fellow, "there would have been a devil of a smash up and we would have boarded her.

Miss Mamie Utter has accepted the Fountain school while Miss Ethel Cummins will teach at Lombardy.

A Sad Case

Last Monday a young lady came in on the stage from Laurel Dell, where she had been for a few days for the benefit of her health. Upon arriving here the party who had her in charge became convinced that she was insane and tried to control her but could not, as the young lady got away and walked some distance out of town. Sheriff Smith sent a deputy after her and brot her back to the depot in time to catch the afternoon train for the city, and sent her to her home, where it was thot she would regain her mentality. The cause of her dementia was said to be a love affair, in which her father objected to her marrying the young man of her choice. Insanity was the result of the father's foolish obstinacy.

The Dental Graduates.

Seven Mendocino boys graduated from the dental department of the college ef Physicians and Surgeons last week.

Drs. A. L. Gibson and Frank E. Rea will locate in Ukiah. They have already secured rooms in the Marks' building and will be ready for business in a few days.

Dr. H. M. Nuckolls has located in the Parrot building, S. F., with Dr. Hunsaker.

Drs. C. H. Smith and Walter Hargrave will travel temporarily and look up a location.

Dr. Luce will probably teach school this fall and decide upon a location later.

Dr. Frank Gough, of Miller, has not yet decided upon a location.

Athlete Hagans.

Willie Hagans, one of Ukiah's promising athletes, took in the coast 4th of July week and won several contests.

At Mendocino he won first place in the 100 yard dash and third in the 220 yard run, winning a purse of $16.50. At Greenwood on Friday he won first place in the running hop, step and jump, clearing 40 ft. 3 in., and first place in the standing broad jump—9ft. 1in., securing the purse of $10. He also took second in the high jump.

Robbery on the Noyo.

Monday evening Constable Waldo of Fort Bragg came to Ukiah, having in charge two men who gave their names as James and John O'Brien, who are committed for trial on a charge of robbery. On June 26 they robbed Nels Offer, in his own house not far from Fort Bragg, obtaining something over $7 in money. Constable Waldo arrested them the next day at Mendocino city. Their preliminary examination was held in Justice F. A. Whipple's court on the 3rd inst, and they were held to answer. The robbers had hired themselves to work for Offer, and had just had supper at his table when they robbed him, threatening death if he made any resistance. They are supposed to be brothers.

Captain Abe Marks returned from the city Wednesday.

The other day, at San Rafael, Rev. W. H. Atkinson, on the thirty-fourth anniversary of his own wedding, performed the marriage ceremony for two of his sons.

From the Willapa (Wash.) Harbor Pilot we learn that J. J. Heath formerly of THE DISPATCH force, is visiting his brother D. B. Heath at Nahcotta, Washington.

You who contemplate marriage need not give your ages to the license clerk unless you are minors. This will be quite satisfactory, especially to ladies of uncertain age.

James and Cole Younger, who were members of the James gang of guerillas and bandits, and who have been in the Minnesota penitentiary for 25 years, have been paroled.

The immediate family of the late ex-President Andrew Johnson is now extinct. The last of his children, Mrs. Martha Patterson died at Greenville Tenn., on the 10th inst.

Ben C. Pohley, locomotive engineer on the Ukiah division, was called to San Francisco last Friday by the death of his wife's father P. E. Maloney, who died on the 4th inst.

The Steamer Ukiah, which was disabled in her machinery over a week ago, and has daily been towed across the bay, has been repaired and is now running under her own steam.

Max O'Rell has taken to writing down and having printed his "stray thots." One of these is: "The first duty of a woman is to teach her children how to respect and love their father." How about old maids, Max?

NEWS FROM NEARBY TOWNS

PHILO JOTTINGS.

PHILO, July, 3

Everything is O. K. in Philo now; the hay is all harvested, the garden growing and we soon expect to see the thrashing machines.

We all spent a pleasant evening at Mr. J. W. Ward's last Saturday. It was a party for young folks, and was enjoyed very much by all. Dancing commenced at 9 o'clock and kept up until 2. Refreshments were served at 12 o'clock. As I have said before, it was a young people's dance, but I am sure I saw a few gray haired old ladies among the dancers. I might be mistaken because I was in the back part of the hall. Mr. Gentry is a fine musician. I wish he would play at every dance we have this summer, and Mr. Moore's calling excels all I have ever heard. Carl Clow's collar seemed almost too high, but he could make goo goo eyes at one of the Christine girls any way.

The Shields school house is improving wonderfully this week. Four men have worked on it since Monday. I guess they will have a school for their children—truly they deserve it.

Mrs. Nancy Studebaker has been quite sick, but is improving now.

Our saw mill and beloved inmates are getting along nicely now. Last week one of the men stamped his little foot and done some slight damage but "Jack-of-all-trades" fixed it all right. DICK.

Blown to Atoms.

The old idea that the body sometimes needs a powerful, drastic, purgative pill has been exploded; for Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are perfectly harmless, gently stimulate liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system and absolutely cure Constipation and Sick Headache. Only 25c at J. R. Mathews, City Pharmacy.

GUALALA NEWS.

GUALALA, July 8, 1901.

Our 4th of July celebration was a grand success. The program was a splendid affair and we extend our sincere to Mrs. Knight and others on that committee for their efforts. We also extend our thanks to our band boys for the excellent music furnished for the occasion. The oration was delivered by Dr. Emil Weschke of Wisconsin and it was an able one that we will cherish in our minds for years to come.

The lunch committee deserves all the credit that can possibly be given it for the bountiful free dinner they put up. They fed 350 people and we are proud of the dinner.

The sporting committee deserve credit for the able manner in which they managed the field sports.

In fact all the people on the river seemed to take hold and work hard to make this one of the best celebrations in the county and I honestly think they succeeded.

The fire works on the river by S. Blevins, representing Dewey sailing into the harbor of Manila, was a grand sight to see. If you weren't at Manila, you should have been here. It was the first time in history it has been given and it all came out nicely, the only mishap being the blowing up of the magazine of the Oregon.

The ball in the evening was just grand. The hall was packed but they all seemed to have a fine time. The music was good and the dance seemed to be a lively one, full of vim. There were about 20 San Francisco people with us and they highly praised us for the good time we had.

The Mill Co. took advantage of the 4th and shut down for a week to put in their new band mill in place of the one blown out last spring. It will start up tomorrow with the new mill; after the new works off we expect to make some ten hour records on this coast.

Geo. Freitos, daughter, son and John and Will Boudette, Dan Doyle and Grand Pap celebrated the 4th in Mendocino city; they report a splendid time.

W. H. Heyward and wife spent the 4th in San Francisco.

Mr. Louis Lesser, the jolly old music teacher of S. F., is camping here on the river. He took in the celebration here and pronounced it a success.

We have one of the finest fishing streams here without a doubt, in the country. The hotel at present is crowded with fishermen from all parts of the state and the river seems to be full of trout yet but they are small this summer and they don't take a fly very well.

Master Ross Blevins, of Boonville, is visiting his uncle, S. E. Blevins, at present.

Prof. F. Iverson of Pt. Arena, and Miss Francis Johnson of this place, were united in marriage at the bride's mother's on July 2nd and left the same day for S. F. to spend their honeymoon. May their path be always strewn with flowers and their future be a happy one is the wish of

MURPHY.

It Girdles The Globe.

The fame of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, as the best in the world, extends round the earth. It's the one perfect healer of Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Sores, Scalds, Boils, Ulcers, Felons, Aches, Pains and all Skin Eruptions. Only infallible Pile cure. 25c a box at J. R. Mathews, City Pharmacy.

Death of Mrs. Grieves.

Mrs. Sarah Grieves, wife of William Grieves, died at the family home in this city last Saturday morning of heart trouble and old age. Deceased was a native of Kentucky and was 82 years, 3 months and 12 days old. She was married to her surviving husband in Illinois 60 years ago, and was the mother of ten children, only four of whom are now living. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon from the Christian church, Rev. Dr. McWilliams conducting the service.

Game Protective Association.

On Monday July 1st, H. T. Payne, acting under the direction of the Board of Fish Commissioners, organized the Mendocino Game and Fish Protective Association. The new association is composed of fifty-six of the most prominent citizens of Ukiah and promises to be an important factor in the future enforcement of the laws for the conservation of game. The officers of the association are as follows: Dr. G. W. Stout, president; J. C. Ruddock, vice-president; Sam D. Paxton, secretary; D. W. Gibson, treasurer and T. J. Weldon, prosecuting attorney.

In commenting upon this organization, Pastime, the official organ of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, says: "Mendocino is the deer hunting ground and the favorite locality of the campers of this section of the state. Many of these campers impose upon the hospitality of the county by flagrant violations of the laws and those who realize the value of the game to the county have determined that these impositions must cease. * * * The new association is a strong one and is composed of determined men, who will lend every assistance to the county warden and his deputies in their efforts to stamp out these outrages."

A meeting of the association was held last Monday night at the office of Justice Critchfield, President Stout in the chair. Attorneys J. Q. White, A. J. Bledsoe, J. E. Pemberton and Frank Hittell were duly elected as members of the Board of Prosecutions in addition to Attorney T. J. Weldon who had already been elected. Secretary Paxton was instructed to have the By-Laws written out, ready for consideration at the next meeting, which will be held Monday evening July 22nd. This association means business and will no doubt accomplish much good in the preservation of game and fish.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

"Observation" Is an Instructive as Well as Amusing Game.

One of the best games for a company of young people is the game of "observation."

In the middle of the room adjoining the one in which the company is to assemble place a round table, and on it put 25 small articles, no matter what—just such things as may be found around the house. The only care necessary is to see that they are as different from each other as possible. Make a list of the articles and keep it concealed, for reference at the proper time.

Provide as many sheets of paper as there are members of the company, and down the left hand margin of each sheet write the numbers from 1 to 25. Keep the door of the adjoining room closed until you are ready to begin the game, so that no one may see what is on the table. At the proper time open the door and let everybody go in and look at the articles from three to five minutes, telling them that they are to make a list of them afterward from memory.

A Kind Fox Terrier.

"A remarkable instance of kindness was shown by my little fox terrier dog Tom," writes the owner of the animal, "who is chained in the poultry yard to protect the fowls from thieves.

"We have two roosters much given to fighting, and after many battles one lost an eye and had a wounded head, so all the fowls turned against him, and his enemy, the black cock, chased him about and much abused him till the poor thing took courage and ran to the dog for protection.

"Tom took a great liking to the poor hunted cock, and whenever he came to him for refuge he wagged his tail and kept the tormenters at bay. He even allowed himself to share his food with him, bones and all, and was in every way a true friend to the helpless bird.

"Such a lesson as this from a dumb animal might well be learned by boys and girls."

Dangerous Hide and Seek.

The little Eskimos play hide and seek among the icefields just as the boys and girls of warmer climes indulge in it in the streets and yards; but, awful to relate, they have to set one member of the company as a lookout for polar bears. Perhaps they are so familiar with these animals that the danger does not scare them. But doesn't it make your hair stand on end to think of the possibility of running rapidly around the corner of an iceberg to get to the goal first and running straight into the arms of a great white monster? —Minneapolis Journal.

Felicia Dorothea Hemans.

When Felicia Dorothea Hemans was a little girl only 13 years old, she had a volume of poems ready for publication, and very, very excellent poems they were, too, noble of thought and sweetly reverent. What could be sweeter than her way of describing mother love:

There is none
In all this cold and hollow world, no fount
Of deep, strong, deathless love, save that within
A mother's heart.

Tabloids the Tendency of the Age.

This is an age of tabloids, which is only another name for concentration. We take our medicines in the form of pills and capsules and tabloids; we take our nourishment in the form of ox boiled down to a tea cup; even our intellectual pabulum must come in a similar form. It is all characteristic of the rush, hurry, superficiality and the desire to avoid trouble, which were the distinguishing traits of the century just closed. If a man is sick, he takes his capsule because he can absorb it anywhere. It does not cause him to lose even a minute from his business; it is so delightfully simple and so, in the same way, he can snatch a meal out of a spoonful of beef tea. The Fourth at Lierly's.

The celebration of the national birthday at Mr. Jerry Lierly's mountain home developed into quite a notable event. As usual many of the numerous friends of the family from Potter Valley and the vicinity joined the visitors and guests from San Francisco and Oakland to make the day as enjoyable as possible. An elaborate program had been prepared, covering almost every hour from sunrise with horn signals from Mt. Sanhedrin, to the rising of the full moon at 11 P. M., with serenades, all around retreat and good night. The program was posted at the entrance of Social Hall and besides an elaborate schedule of the literary exercises that came off in a very happy and impressive spirit at 11 o'clock in the forenoon. It consisted of the following:

Overture Organ.....Mrs. Mason Oak.
Address.....Charles Bundschu, S. F.
Star Spangled Banner....Miss Lierly.
Declaration of Independence Rudolf Bundschu, L. H. S., S. F.
Piano Solo Papillon by Grieg...Miss Waggoner, Oakland.
Baritone Solo "Holy City"....Walter Bundschu, U. C.
"The Fourth in Mendocino" poem... Mrs. Chas. Bundschu.
America, Chorus and Organ.....Mrs. Mason.

The address of Chas. Bundschu, who is President of the Gundlach Brundschu, Wine Co. and Vice-President of the Merchants Association of San Francisco, was kindly received and all the other numbers of the program were full of inspiration and high cultured patriotic and artistic sentiment.

The barbecue followed and drum and fife opened the procession that steered the decorated, scientifically prepared, hot, smoking, roasted young oxen to the artistically decorated grove, where its gastronomic dissection under the auspices of the Chief master of ceremonies, Mr. Sullacadue, soon afforded great pleasure to young and old. The program referred to this chapter of the day as follows:

"Appetite unlimited. Rump—neck hind—mis—or any other kind of steaks for the hard feeder—Oxidized ladies steaks and sweet bread for the gentle eater. The cook's and waiter's union being on a strike, the public are cordially invited to help themselves. No fees and no napkins." Still the occasion proved to be more of a royal banquet in neatness and daintiness of appointments and the "Chef de Cuisine" Mrs. Cherry—Mrs. Jerry Lierly deserves high praise on her culinary and cake producing propensities.

The evening brought a well arranged masked ball in which all the guests joined hands and spirit to make it a rousing success. We are glad to note that the honorary prize, a beautiful large sized cake, for the best sustained characters, was voted by a large majority to Misses——— and ———of Potter Valley who imitated a couple of indians with considerable intelligence and faithfulness and we are proud of the success of the charming young ladies and extend our compliments for their thus actually taking the cake.

The night closed with fireworks, songs, etc. and on the following morning Mr. Lierly's guests departed full of the good spirit and good fellowship and grateful for the enjoyment so liberally extended in this most enjoyable celebration in his picturesque mountain home of Mendocino county. C.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, the hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Strikes a Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H., "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Cure for Cholera Infantum—Never Known to Fail.

During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail.—MRS. CURTIS BAKER, Bookwalter, Ohio. CONDENSED STORIES.

Mr. Carnegie Resented Mr. Schwab's Criticism of Golf.

There is no more enthusiastic golf player than Andrew Carnegie. Charles M. Schwab, on the other hand, holds that golf is the most no account game known to man. One day several things had happened to annoy Mr. Schwab, and he hurried in to talk with Mr. Carnegie in anything but a pleasant frame of mind. Mr. Carnegie was absorbed in the contemplation of a new set of golf clubs. As Mr. Schwab entered Mr.

CARNEGIE'S DEFENSE OF GOLF.

Carnegie looked around with a smile and said, "Charles, what do you think of this game of golf?" What Mr. Schwab said about golf and the people who play it and the man who invented it and everything connected with it was lurid. As he paused for a second to take breath Mr. Carnegie said: "Charles, I consider golf the best game in the world. I am very fond of playing it, and this is all that I care to say to you this morning."

Mr. Schwab had to leave, and it was several days before Mr. Carnegie would speak to him.

Author and Census.

Apropos of the census, a well known author got into trouble with the man who called for his "return." The final column of the paper says that you are to "write the precise infirmity, if any, opposite the name of the person, and if the infirmity dates from childhood add 'from childhood.'" Under this heading my friend put "authorship," and the census man spent some time in arguing with him that authorship was not an infirmity. "You try it, and you'll know better," said my friend. "I'll put measles there if you don't go away." And the census man went away, still grumbling.—London Express.

THE RIGHT THING TO PUT ON.
(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

From the natural impulse to "put something on" a painful spot all applications for the relief of pain have arisen.

The most successful have ever been poultices or plasters, and the best of these is Benson's Porous Plaster.

No other has anything like the same power as a curative agent; it is highly and scientifically medicated, and its standard is advanced year by year.

Use Benson's Plaster for coughs, colds, chest diseases, rheumatism, grip, neuralgia, kidney trouble, lame back, and other ailments that make Winter a season of suffering and danger. It relieves and cures quicker than any other remedy.

Do not accept Capsicum, Strengthening or Belladonna plasters in place of Benson's, as they possess none of its curative power. Insist on having the genuine.

The people of every civilized land have testified for years to the superlative merit of Benson's Plasters; and 5,000 physicians and druggists of this country have declared them worthy of public confidence.

In official comparisons with others, Benson's Plasters have been honored with fifty-five highest awards.

For sale by all druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on the receipt of 25c. each. Accept no imitation or substitute.

CONDENSED STORIES.

General Lee's Story of His First Meeting With Funston.

General Fitz-Hugh Lee tells this story of his first meeting with General Fred Funston:

"I remember Funston well. One morning when I was consul general in Havana a hungry, hunted looking chap appeared in my office. He said his name was Funston and that he had been fighting with the insurgents for a year and a half and that he was sick and wounded. He had a Mauser bullet through his lungs, his hip was broken and his constitution shattered by fever.

"I became interested in him and admired his grit. I knew that if the Spaniards learned who he was they would arrest him and would take him to Morro Castle, where he would be placed against a wall and a volley of musketry would end him. So I bought him a ticket to New York, and also fitted him out with some clothing. I offered to have some clothing made for him, as the only ready made suits to be had were of light weight, but he did not dare to remain.

"When Funston arrived in New York on Jan. 17, 1898, a blizzard was howling through the streets, and he must have shivered as he limped down the gangplank. After his return to Kansas war talk was in the air. He was appointed colonel of a regiment—and you know the rest."

J. L. Toole and the Prince.

King Edward has always had a keen delight in entertainments of all kinds. Mr. Toole, who entered on his seventy-second years a few days ago, will remember his first visit to Sandringham. His manager went down before him to make the necessary arrangements, and the king, then Prince of Wales, explained that he wished the performance to be kept secret in order that the princess might be surprised. "To enable you to do so," said the heir apparent, "I shall introduce you as the Spanish embassador." "But I cannot speak a word of Spanish," said Mr. Toole's manager. "Nor can they," replied the Prince of Wales, "so that your disguise will be perfect." After the performance the prince proposed Mr. Toole's health in a genial and kindly speech.

The Hanging of Mr. Goodwin.

N. C. Goodwin tells this story on himself:

"Charles H. Hoyt met a friend on the street in Boston on the day 'Nathan Hale' was to open in that city.

"'I have a couple of tickets for "Nathan Hale" tonight,' said he. 'Come along. It's a good play—good Revolutionary plot, New England surroundings and all that. It will interest you.'

"'No,' answered the person invited, 'I don't like Goodwin, and I won't go.'

"'But come and see the play.'

"'No; I don't like Goodwin on the stage or off.'

"'Oh, this is just the play for you to see him in,' said Hoyt earnestly. 'He gets hanged in the last act.'"—Chicago Tribune.

An Evarts Witticism.

The late William M. Evarts forged light blades of wit and humor as successfully as he did the weightier weapons of analytical argument and sustained eloquence, says the New York Mail and Express. In his prime no public dinner was regarded as complete without him. Where he sat was the head of the table. It would take a sizable volume to hold all the good things which fell from Mr. Evarts' lips or were credited to him. His sly dig at President Hayes' temperance principles is still one of the favorite stories at Washington. "While Hayes occupied the White House," said Evarts, "the water at his dinner flowed like champagne."

MR. CANNON BOOKED.

Senator Hoar has never been accused of being a humorist. In fact, he is, as a rule, the gravest of all "the grave and reverend senators." But occasionally he shows that he has a spark of the humorous in his composition. One day recently the Massachusetts statesman, "Uncle Joe" Cannon and several others were talking about a certain speech attributed to Charles Sumner. Senator Hoar expressed the conviction that Mr. Sumner had not said a number of things attributed to him by The Record, and "Uncle Joe" contended that there was no sort of doubt about his having said them. The discussion was becoming very warm and interesting when Senator Hoar, as if to bring it to a close, exclaimed:

"When I die and go to heaven, I will look up Charles Sumner at the earliest possible moment and say to him, 'Charlie, I am sure you never said the things attributed to you by The Record.'"

"But suppose you do not find him there?" "Uncle Joe" asked, with his blandest smile.

"In that event, Joe," said the veteran Massachusetts statesman without moving a muscle of his face, "I will have to beg that you deliver the message to him."—Chicago Chronicle.

Where It Will Fall Down.

After the world had waited a long time a capitalist finally came forward and endowed a theater with $10,000,000 in the name of pure art.

It was the night of the first performance.

The curtain had gone down on the third act, and the audience was applauding wildly.

"You'll have to come before the curtain and make a speech," said the manager, going behind the scenes.

"I will not!" exclaimed the star actor. "It is not art. It destroys the illusion."

"But the audience is growing wild. Some of the people have begun to hiss their displeasure at your refusal."

"Let them hiss. What do we care? We are not dependent upon audiences for the support of this theater."

"I know it, but here's a note from the man who gave the ten millions. He says if you don't come out he'll insist on your being fired."

And pure art continued to get it in the neck.—Chicago Tribune.

American Ways In Jamaica.

When you arrive in your hotel in Kingston, Jamaica—and here it may be remarked that the town contains but one hotel worthy of the name—you are at once made aware that the establishment is conducted "on the American plan," says a correspondent in the London Daily Mail. The guidebook says so, and the inevitable iced water confirms the statement. Outside, on Harbor street, the fine system of electric trams makes you, as an Englishman, blush to the hat brim. Call a bus—it is a buggy of the American pattern—and drive to the railway station, and once more the handiwork and enterprise of the Americans are in evidence, for the engine is of United States design, and the cars are of the same make. One is therefore not surprised to learn that an American started the railway business in Jamaica and eventually sold out at a handsome figure to the government of the colony.

McNAB & HIRSCH,
Attorneys for Plaintiff.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Mrs. F. C. Hill, R. E. Donohoe, John Doe, Richard Roe and Jane Roe, Defendants:

You are hereby directed to appear and answer the complaint in the above entitled action, brought against you in the Superior Court of Mendocino County, State of California, by the above named plaintiff within ten days after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or within thirty days if served elsewhere.

The said action is brought against you to obtain a decree of this Court quieting the title to the lands and premises set forth in the complaint herein and described as the w½ of se¼ of section 6, twp 17 n r 15 w m. d. m. containing 80 acres of land, situate in Mendocino County, State of California, and determining the adverse claims of the defendants and each of them in and to said lands, and that it be adjudged and decreed by said decree that the defendants and each of them have no interest or estate in the said lands and premises: and that the title of the plaintiff thereto is good and valid; and that defendants and each of them be forever enjoined and debarred from asserting any claim whatever in or to said lands and premises, and for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem meet and equitable, and for costs of suit, all of which will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein, to which you are hereby referred for further particulars.

And you are hereby notified that unless you appear and answer the complaint as above required, the plaintiff will take default against you and apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Superior Court of the County of Mendocino, State of California, this 2nd day of May, 1901.

[SEAL] HALE McCOWEN,
County Clerk of Mendocino County and Ex-Officio Clerk of the Superior Court thereof.

ILLUSTRIOUS FARMER MARR.

The center of population in the United States has been established. It is not merely four miles east and two miles south of Columbus, Ind. To be accurate, it is in the far southeastern corner of Farmer Henry Marr's clover field, and the Chicago Tribune tells us how to get there.

Go down to Columbus, Ind., and ask the man at the livery stable to drive you out to Hen Marr's place. After you get to Hen Marr's you go round the corner and past the barn. Then you keep straight on until you come to a white mule and a black mule eating straw out of a stack.

Take a turn to windward and bear off sharply on a long tack, as the mule has a reputation for kicking. Pass the black dog to starboard and the pigsty to larboard. After getting out of the long lane come about and stand across the "east 40," south by southeast.

Away over in the far corner there is a single melancholy fence rail sticking up in the ground. Approach this rail with uncovered head and in respectful silence, because it marks the center of population of the United States.

A picture shows Farmer Marr standing, grim and solitary, in the clover field, the "center man" in the center of population. It requires a long stretch of the imagination to believe that this agricultural desert is the center of anything except clover tops and that Farmer Marr has almost 19,000,000 respectively east, west, north and south of him. But for all these doubts Farmer Marr is the center man. It has been so officially declared.

Gas at $1,000 a Cubic Foot.

No one has ever suggested that helion, the element which until recently was thought to exist in the sun, but which was discovered in the gases contained in certain minerals by Professor Ramsay, would be of any practical utility. At present, moreover, it is not likely to be, for it is the costliest of all elements. The method now being pursued for capturing this element in workable quantity shows that its separation and concentration involve an enormous expense, and the helion obtained costs $1,000 per cubic foot. The same amount of money would at the present time purchase over 1,000,000 cubic feet of coal gas. The price of helion, therefore, at present is more than a million times that of coal gas. The present costly research is being undertaken, among other things, in order to see whether helion can be solidified. To gain this result temperature will cease to play a part, for absolute zero will have to be reached.—Lancet.

Some Answers.

The members of a girls' class in an English school were asked a few questions. One was interrogated as to what was meant by "bearing false witness against your neighbor." "It was," said she, "when nobody did nothing and somebody went and told of it."

Another was asked how beef tea was made, and she replied, "Buy a tin of beef extract, and follow the directions on the lid."

"What are warmth producing foods?" a third girl was asked. The reply was, "Cayenne pepper and Jamaica ginger."

A Rapid Analysis.

It is the custom in the University of Rochester for the professors to give various compounds to the students to analyze without telling them what they are. George Van Vrooman received a bottle containing a dark substance. He heated a platinum wire redhot and plunged it into the bottle. In an instant, when an explosion occurred, he found that the shattered bottle had contained gunpowder. As he lay in the hospital, nursing his wounds, it was little comfort to him to know that he had made an unusually rapid analysis.

Dreams.

Dr. Reid had a blister applied to his head, and the plaster which was put on afterward causing excessive pain he dreamed of falling into the hands of Indians and being scalped. A whisper in the ear is sufficient to produce a dream, and it is related of a certain officer that his companions in this way conducted him through the whole process of a quarrel which ended in a duel, and when the parties were supposed to meet a pistol was put into his hand, which he fired and was awakened by the report.—Cassell's Magazine.

The Hub Growing Captious.

We read that Lady Dufferin "christened" the Shamrock. "Named" would have been just as good an expression, if not better. Yet it must be admitted that the verb "to christian," in the broad sense "to name" or "to christen," is used by many careful writers, and doubtless such usage will, before long silence the punctilious critics.—Boston Journal.

Gilman's Deal in Coffins.

When the late George F. Gilman, the tea store man, whose millions are in dispute, became old enough to go into business, his father arranged a partnership for him with a Mr. Miles, who had been a successful leather merchant in the Swamp. Young Gilman did not care for the leather business, but he obeyed his father's wishes.

Mr. Miles, his partner, was a much older man, and, as Gilman soon discovered, he was inclined to devote most of his time to outside interests, among them being a new cemetery. One day Mr. Miles came down to the office and said:

"Mr. Gilman, I did a good stroke of business today. I bought ten cemetery lots and then sold nine of them for what the ten cost me. That leaves me one lot clear profit."

Gilman didn't see that this meant any profit for the firm of Miles & Gilman, and on the following morning when he reached the office he said to Mr. Miles:

"I did a good stroke of business myself this morning. I stopped at a Broadway undertaker's and bought ten coffins. I sold nine of them for what I paid for the ten, leaving one coffin clear profit. I have saved this coffin for you, Mr. Miles, thinking that you might use it in your cemetery lot."

Mr. Miles glared at the young man and then retired to his own office. When he reappeared several hours later, it was to announce that the copartnership was dissolved.

How to Get the Water Out.

In the fall of 1896 Admiral Robley D. Evans was in command of the Indiana. The squadron started in a storm from Fort Monroe for New York. "At 1 a. m." says the admiral, "the ash shoots on the gun deck had their covers torn off, and the deck was flooded, and there was no way to get the water out except by bailing with buckets. The carpenter, who was in a great funk, came to me on the bridge, white in the face, and reported in a trembling voice:

"'Sir, the gun deck is full of water, and I can't see how we are ever going to get it out!'

"I replied, 'Go down and drink some of it out, sir, and don't bother me again with your whining,' which sent him on his way, and I saw no more of him."

What He Would Do.

In a recent discussion on a certain railroad bill in the New York legislature Assemblyman Weekes of New York happened to say: "Now, suppose there was an excursion from New York to Buffalo and I wanted to go. Under the existing law what would I have to do?"

"Get a pass!" interrupted Assemblyman Frisbie of Schoharie.

The roar of laughter which followed showed that the poke had not failed for lack of appreciation and that Frisbie knew how to travel.

YOUR BODIES ARE TEMPLES

You believe that statement. But you only realize in part the obligations implied by it. Do you keep that temple of the body clean? If not, the defilement attaches to every service of the temple. Disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, affects the mind as well as the body. The dull mind stupified by poisonous gasses, enters on its service without desire, and accomplishes it without delight. A healthy body and a clear mind result from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It removes the clogging and poisonous impurities from the stomach, stimulates the flow of the juices necessary to digestion and increases the blood supply in quality and quantity. The "Discovery" is strictly a temperance medicine and contains no alcohol or whisky, neither opium, cocaine, nor other narcotic.

"I had suffered from indigestion and only those who have suffered from it know what it really is," writes Mrs. M. J. Fagan, of 1613 East Genesee Street, Syracuse, N. Y. "I had had severe attacks of headache and dizziness with cold hands and feet: everything I ate distressed me, bowels were constipated and I was growing very thin and nervous. I cannot half express the bad feelings I had when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took nine bottles of the 'Discovery.' I commenced feeling better with the first bottle and kept on improving. Now I am so greatly improved in health my friends often speak of it."

J. B. SANFORD.

The Treasury Surplus.

Our Republican contemporaries are congratulating the country upon the fact that at the close of the fiscal year June 30th, 1901, there was a surplus of $75,000,000 in the national treasury. Of course a slight surplus is more to be desired than a deficit, but a surplus of $75,000,000 in a single year can only exist thru over-taxation. We are prone to forget that primarily, the government has no money, and that money can only be procured for government use thru some form of taxation imposed upon the people and upon their toil and industry. The surplus on hand, therefore, represents an over-tax of about one dollar a head upon the entire population of the United States. And this surplus by no means represents all of the over-tax to which the people have been subjected. Many millions of dollars have been unnecessarily expended for purposes never contemplated in our scheme of government. We find little cause for congratulation in the fact that there is a large surplus in the treasury. Morally speaking, the government has no right to accumulate a surplus. That this is true is to a certain extent recognized by the government in the abolition of certain internal revenue and stamp taxes which took effect July 1st. An overflowing treasury is a constant temptation to jobbery and official dishonesty, to say nothing of the fact that it can only exist thru oppression of the people. It is true that the executive department of the government can collect only such taxes as are authorized by Congress, and that Congress is supposed to represent the people. But it has come to pass that Congress is dominated by a few men, and these few men are the personal representatives of the Executive. During the past four years Congress has done little, except to carry out the will of the Executive, as expressed thru the Lodges, Platts and Hannas. The people are growing so accustomed to this, that they no longer hold Congress responsible. In the Republican party the only purpose seems to be to "sustain the administration", and Congress is only an agency to carry out that purpose. Let us hope that the time will come when our government will be conducted upon such sound principles that we will not be cumbered by a treasury surplus nor annoyed by a deficit.

Mendocino County.

No state or territory is more inviting to immigrants and prospective investors than California, and no county in the state presents more or greater inducements than Mendocino. In a total area of 3460 square miles, which is 146 square miles more than the combined areas of Deleware and Rhode Island, Mendocino contains land of every variety and adaptability, natural resources far surpassing those of other parts of the state which have been rapidly settled up and developed. These resources consist of farming and grazing lands, timber, coal, copper, stone, tan bark, water power, a long coast line with an ocean full of fish, and many other things too numerous to mention in detail. The acreage of uncut redwood timber aggregates about 443000, and there are thousands of acres of fir and tan oak. There are more than a million acres of unentered government land. There are streams affording unlimited water power. There are valleys for cultivation and hills for grazing. There are already 165,000 bearing fruit trees and 55,000 that have not yet come into bearing, with unlimited capacity of expansion. The value of the wool product already reaches $150'000 per year at the low prices prevailing and there is room for extensive development of this industry. Mendocino wool commands the highest price in the market. The average annual rainfall at Ukiah is 35 inches and further north it is greater, insuring crops and range feed. The value of the hop crop runs high up into the thousands, about $60000 being annually paid out for harvesting the crop.

To sum up, some of the advantages Mendocino county offers to settlers are the following; Great extent; affordiug room and choice of location. Equable temperature, insuring bodily comfort. Healthfulness, especially absence of fevers and malaria. Diversity of products, giving variety of choice in occupation. Abundant rainfall, guaranteeing crops and providing pure water. Cheap lumber, permitting the residents to build and improve at much less cost than in most sections. Abundant and cheap fuel, offering to every man firewood simply for the labor of taking it. Good schools in every part of the county, within reach of every home. No irrigation, with expensive water rights, reservoirs, flumes, ditches and litigation. No Spanish grants to bar settlement, or ancient land claims to deprive the settlers of vested rights. No land grant to any railroad to interfere with individual or community progress. No sudden change of season to kill the grain. No summer storms to destroy tender products or interfere with harvests. No long winter when stock must be fed off the accumulations of summer. Cheap lands are offered in abundance.

WAR TAX CHANGES.

The law modifying the war revenue act went into effect July 1st. Hereafter there will not be any one-cent stamps on telegrams or two cent stamps on bank checks. Here are the other taxes abolished. Ten cents on export bills of lading, 25 cents on warehouse receipts, 2 cents on each $100 domestic money order, one half of 1 per cent on a bond by a guarantee company, ⅛ of a cent on each 5 cents worth of patent medicines, 35 cents on certificates of damage, 10 cents on certificates not otherwise specified, all charter party taxes, 1 cent on every dollar's worth of chewing gum, $20 for commercial brokers, 2 cents on sight drafts, 25 cents to $1 on leases, 1 cent on express receipts, $1 to $5 on manifests for Custom house entry, 25 cents on each $1500 on trust mortgages and conveyances, ⅞ of a cent on every 5 cents worth of cosmetics and perfumery, 2 cents on a power of attorney to vote, 2 cents on each $100 promissory note.

There are a number of modifications in the war revenue act. One will put a flat rate of $1.60 internal revenue on beer. The tax now is $2 a barrel, with 7¼ per cent rebate. The brewers will save 25 cents a barrel by the modification. On tobacco and snuff the tax is changed to 12 cents a pound. On cigars weighing not more than three lbs. a thousand the tax of $1 a thousand is changed to 18 cents a pound. The tax of $1.50 a thousand on cigarettes weighing three pounds a thousand and of 36 cents a pound on those valued at more than $2.

It is said that the receipts of the Government will fall off about $40,000,000 as a result of the change, and that New York's share in the reduction will be something like $8,000,000 or $10,000,000.

In his 4th of July address at Ukiah, Captain Miller of the U. S. Army, said some very good things, but in his enthusiastic advocacy of expansion he went so far as to twist and pervert the scriptures to sustain his argument. He quoted Christ's great commission to the Apostles, "go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," as authority for that kind of expansion which the present national administration is now attempting. The Krag-Jorgenson, and powder and ball, have no part in the gospel proclaimed by the Man of Nazareth. We commend to Capt. Miller, and to all such enthusiasts, a careful study of Christ's sermon on the Mount.

The time was when the American people recognized and heeded the lessons of history and the warnings of their wise men. They understood that law extended over every department of nature and of life. They were convinced that every cause produced a certain effect and that this rule would hold good in governmental affairs as well as in the realm of nature. Guided by certain fundamental principles, we were enabled to escape the rocks and whirlpools upon which former nations had been wrecked and in which they had been engulfed. But we have apparently thrown away the old reliable compass, and are steering by a new instrument called commercialism. We are disregarding the warnings of such wise men as Washington and Lincoln, and have placed ourselves under the leadership of the Mark Hannas of the land. We no longer recognize the fact that poison will kill; that to throw ourselves over a precipice will break our bones and crush out our life. We have made commercialism our god and in our struggle for commercial supremacy, we proclaim that the end justifies the means. We have forgotten that the law, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap," applies with equal force to nations as to individuals.

Our local contemporary, The Republican Press, comes out this week a six-column, eight-page paper, the same size as THE DISPATCH. We are glad to note this evidence of progress and prosperity on the part of our contemporary.

The theft of $30,000 from the vaults of the U. S. Mint, was made possible thru neglect of duty on the part of the officials of the institution. If the money had been regularly counted as the rules require, the theft could not have occurred.

We are pleased to note the presence of the Willits X Rays on our desk again. Brother Bartholomew is getting out a good paper and deserves the support of the entire community. THE DISPATCH wishes the X-Rays success and hopes it may have no more conflagrations to interrupt its progress.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

How a Cowboy Had Fun With an Athletic Parson.

A clerical friend of mine told me a capital story of a Yale man who was the stroke oar of his crew and the chief athlete on the football field.

He entered the ministry and spent years in missionary labor in the far west. Walking one day through a frontier town, a cowboy stepped up to him and said:

"Parson, you don't have enough fun. Take a drink."

The minister declined.

"Well," he said, "parson, you must have some fun. Here's a faro layout. Take a hand in the game."

The minister declined.

"Parson," said the cowboy, "you'll die if you don't have some fun."

And he knocked the parson's hat off his head and hit him a whack on the ear.

The old athlete's spirit rose. The science which had been learned in the college gymnasium and forgotten for a quarter of a century was aroused, and a blow was landed on the jaw of that cowboy that sent him sprawling in the street.

The parson walked over to him as if he had been a door rug, picked him up and dusted the side of the house with him and then mopped up the sidewalk with his form.

As the ambulance was carrying the cowboy off he raised his head feebly and said:

CHAMP CLARK STORIES

Gathered In and About the Halls of Congress.

Mixed Metaphor as It Was Served Up by a Senatorial Demosthenes—New Theory Concerning Authorship of the Shakespeare Plays—Uncle Jehu Baker as a Campaigner—Queer Temperance Speech—Simple Wants of an Old Time Politician—Anecdote of General Joe Wheeler.

[Copyright, 1901, by Champ Clark.]

The heat of debate and straining after effect are productive of many mixed and incongruous metaphors. Mr. Lemuel Ely Quigg's farfamed "booted and spurred gladiators" finds many counterparts in congressional speechmaking. Many of these gems are, of course, lost, but occasionally one is preserved to contribute to the gayety of nations.

Senator George Graham Vest of Missouri is not only an orator of rare excellence, but is also a fine scholar. Among his other rich mental endowments is a keen sense of the ludicrous. For years he has kept a record of what he denominates "oratorical gems," which during his twenty odd years in the senate have enlivened debate. He vows that this wondrous sentence was actually delivered in the less numerous branch of the national legislature by one of the conscript fathers:

"The apple of discord has been sown in our midst and unless nipped in the bud will produce a conflagration whose waves will submerge this fair land in anarchy."

In the language of the late lamented Professor Squeers of Dotheboys Hall, "That is richness!"

That is almost equal to the wonderful sentence uttered by Sir Boyle Roche when, fearing the progress of revolutionary opinions, he drew a hair raising picture of the future, declaring, "The house of commons may be invaded by ruffians, who will cut us into mince meat and throw our bleeding heads upon the table to stare us in the face," a performance which it would have been worth a long journey to see.

On another occasion Sir Boyle astonished his audience by asserting, "It would surely be better, Mr. Speaker, to give up not only a part, but, if necessary, even the whole, of our constitution to preserve the remainder."

Anecdotes of Jehu Baker.

The greatest philosopher I have ever known in congress was Hon. Jehu Baker of Belleville, Ills., "Uncle" Jehu, as most of us younger men called him. He had been in congress off and on for a quarter of a century and was once minister to Venezuela. He achieved his most enduring fame by defeating the great tariff reformer, Colonel William R. Morrison, in 1882. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth congress by the Democrats, Populists and Free Silver Republicans and sat on the Democratic side of the house, where "the boys," as he denominated the juniors, made a great deal of him. As he was nearly blind and couldn't get around much, we would go and sit by him to keep him company.

One day he made this statement to me, which will surprise those pessimists laboring under the delusion that the human race is playing out. He said:

"I have been in congress at intervals for 20 years. I was in those congresses after the war which are named great congresses; but after getting acquainted with this house I am certain that it has a higher average, both of capacity and learning, than any other house I ever served in."

That was a consoling sort of remark and called to mind Speaker Reed's definition of a statesman.

The man from Maine once said, "A statesman is a dead politician."

Shortly after I delivered my speech on Frank Blair, Uncle Jehu placed his hand affectionately on my knee and said:

"Clark, you are a hero worshiper," to which soft impeachment I pleaded guilty.

"Who was the greatest soldier?" he asked.

"Napoleon."

"Who the greatest statesman?"

"Thomas Jefferson."

"Who the greatest poet?"

"Lord Byron."

"Who the greatest orator?"

"Daniel Webster."

"Who the greatest philosopher?"

"Lord Bacon."

"Who the greatest dramatist?"

"Lord Bacon."

"Why do you say that?" he inquired.

"Because he wrote the Shakespeare plays," I answered.

"Tut, tut! You don't believe that," he said. "No one man wrote those plays, neither Francis Bacon nor William Shakespeare nor any other man. They are a composite work and combine the cream of thought of all the wits and scholars and philosophers of that age. A composite work, my boy; a composite work."

That was a brand new theory to me, and I submit it to the curious for what it is worth.

Uncle Jehu's successor is Hon. William A. Rodenberg, one of the handsomest and most promising young Republicans in the house. He likes to talk of "the Sage of Belleville," as Judge Baker was sometimes styled by many of his admirers. One dull day I strolled into the Republican cloakroom in quest of ventures and, seeing Rodenberg, asked him how Uncle Jehu was getting on. After answering my question he told me:

How Uncle Jehu Borrowed Money.

"When he was running against Colonel William R. Morrison," said Rodenberg, "one day, in changing his clothes preparatory to going on a speechmaking tour to New Douglas and Alton, he failed to take any money with him. He stood off the conductor, who was an old acquaintance, to East St. Louis, where he arrived about daybreak. He then went to the house of Judge Joe Messick, who had been up late at a political powwow, routed him out, told him his condition and asked a loan. Messick supposed he would want at least $100, and was loath to part with that much coin of the realm, never dreaming that Judge Baker could defeat Colonel Morrison. So he explained to Uncle Jehu that he himself was hard up, but the judge persisted. At last Messick asked him how much he wanted, and Uncle Jehu fairly took his breath away by saying:

"'Well, Joe, I can make it upon $2. I think,' whereupon Joe forked over the $2, and the boys do say to this day," continued Rodenberg, "that Uncle Jehu made the trip to New Douglas and Alton and got back with 10 cents."

A Temperance Candidate.

"Once Uncle Jehu had an appointment to speak at a little place called Pocahontas," Rodenberg went on. "The boys were out for a time that night and had prepared along with their edibles a keg or two of beer. They invited Uncle Jehu to join them in a glass, but he refused. They pressed him, explaining that it was all paid for, and he consented. After their mugs were filled with foaming lager Uncle Jehu pounded the table with his glass and said:

"'I want it distinctly understood that I neither helped pay for this beer nor had any hand in bringing it here. I do not believe in that method of electioneering. However, I do not object to any one drinking a little for the stomach's sake. Having made that explanation, we will now drink to our glorious republic'—a queer sort of stump speech surely."

Uncle Jehu's Simple Wants.

To illustrate the simplicity of Uncle Jehu's character Rodenberg gave this incident:

"When Judge Baker was minister to Venezuela, he left his business in the hands of Judge Marshall Weir, with whom I was reading law. Somehow Judge Weir got it into his head that Judge Baker was in a tight place for ready money and generously wrote him that he would, if needed, advance him funds out of his own pocket, which he could repay at his convenience. Judge Baker responded:

"'Dear judge, I have enough for my immediate wants, and that is all that a citizen of the republic should desire.'"

How much shame, mental anguish and loss of reputation would have been spared many public men had they possessed the wisdom, fortitude and self abnegation to act on Uncle Jehu's noble utterance! He was a grand old man.

Serenade, but Not Charivari.

Upon one occasion, when Major Harvey Salmon of Missouri was in Washington, he was swapping yarns in the cloakroom with the boys and told this one, which he attributed to Colonel Henry A. Newman, reported to be the best story teller in the state: "Henry Newman has a new tale about an Irishman's impression of the Salvation Army.

"For the first time the Irishman heard the drums, horns and tomtoms of the Salvation Army outside the window. He listened. The name of Jesus was repeated in varying tones amid the din and confusion. He turned angrily to a companion and said:

"'Well, now, I don't like that business. It may be all right to serenade Jesus, but these fellows oughtn't to be permitted to charivari him.'"

Didn't Fit.

One of the greatest wits ever in the senate was Governor Jim Nye of Nevada. Dozens of stories—good ones, too, but a little shelf worn—are told of him. While by no means a Beau Brummel or even a Beau Hickman in dress, he generally wore a silk hat, or stovepipe, as it is usually called.

Just after he had on one occasion provided himself with a brand new tile of that variety Horace Greeley visited the senate. Nye's hat was on a chair. Horace sat down on it and mashed it flatter than a pancake. Nye looked at the ruined hat, then at Greeley and sorrowfully remarked, "Horace, I could have told you that it would not fit before you tried it on!"

General Joe Wheeler's Military Ardor.

When the Spanish war was brewing, General Joe Wheeler of Alabama was the most rampant patriot of us all. Senator Vest of Missouri, himself an ex-Confederate soldier, met him on the street and said:

"General, why are you so keen for a war?"

"Because it's my trade, sir—my trade," meaning thereby that he was a West Pointer.

His daughter said: "Father, surely you had enough of war to satisfy a reasonable man from 1861 to 1865. You stay at home with us and let the young men go this time." "Now, daughter, if a fish had been out of the water 33 years and came in sight of a nice looking lake he would wiggle a little, at any rate!" And the kindly old hero not only wiggled a little, but wiggled himself into imperishable renown leading a charge on Cuban soil.

Dolliver of Iowa, who was on the committee of ways and means with General Wheeler, was trying to dissuade him from quitting congress for the tented field.

"Oh, I'm going!" said the general. "I will have one advantage over the rest of the officers—I am such a lightweight that I can ride a horse all day without tiring him a particle!"
